

Heaver Summer Diary

Places to go and people to see. By Dan Jones

Festival Frolics

* Clapham's answer to Glastonbury, Ben & Jerry's Sundae Festival returns for its fifth year this July. With fairground fun and lashings of ice cream, kids and adults can rock out all weekend. Although the official line up was under wraps as we went to press, our spies tell us that excellent Scots indie band Camera Obscura are performing. Kids under 5 go free. Climate neutral. 25th-26th July www.benandjerrys.co.uk

Good Vintage

* This sequined stalwart of the vintage fashion scene returns to the Battersea Arts Centre this June, packed with cherry-picked womenswear, textiles, shoes and accessories and a string of pre-loved high fashion pieces from Chanel, YSL and even Barbara Hulanicki's ultra rare Biba creations (made decades before her current Topshop collaboration). More than 65 stalls, one-off investment pieces and a truly unrivalled selection of cakes – heaven! 21st June Anita's Vintage Fashion Fair www.vintagefashionfairs.com

Show Time

* This summer, a little slice of Berlin cool comes to the backstreets of Clapham. Artist-led gallery and studio complex Studio Voltaire presents a group show curated by cutting-edge German gallery owner Micky Schubert (26 June-26 July) and the fruits of Iranian-born Berlin-based photographer Nairy Baghramian's recent Studio Voltaire residency. 20th August-20th September. www.studiovoltaire.org

BANANARAMA

* Harry Hill, Al Murray, Catherine Tate, Rob Brydon, Omid Djalil and Eddie Izzard all cut their proverbials here at Banana Cabaret, the infamous Balham comedy night at The Bedford. Performed in a Shakespearean Globe theatre, let funny men Gavin Webster, Addy Van Der Borgh, Andrew Clover and Joe Rowntree tickle your fancy this summer.

Fridays and Saturdays, 9pm.
bananacabaret.co.uk

The London Drawing Theatre

* Tutors Anne Noble-Partridge and David Price aim to literally strip bare our preconceived notions about art. Their vogueish experimental workshops at Tate Modern encourage new ways of approaching life drawing and this summer they bring their brand of theatrical nudity to Battersea. The Drawing Theatre is a weirdly wonderful combination of theatre, drawing and performance where south London's art lovers can create sketches, collages and 3D drawings. Contains nudity.

Sat 20th June, Sat 18th July.
www.londondrawing.com

Run Fatboy Run

* In a refreshing twist on the great, if not odd, British tradition of the fun run, the Sumo Run will see hundreds of fundraisers take to the streets dressed in inflatable Sumo wrestler suits to raise money for international education charity Gemini (www.gemin-i.org). If you don't fancy donning fancy dress yourself, scores of over-inflated runners wheezing through Battersea Park is a sight not to be missed. 20th June. www.sumorun.com

